Plans Shaping for Washington Program

Community Celebration at School February 22 to Feature Observance.

D. A. R. LENDS SUPPORT

Narberth's plans for a proper observance of the Washington Bi-Centennial took definite form this week when announcement was made of the program which shall hold forth on the 200th birthday, February 22, 1932, with a community celebration in the school auditorium.

The features of the evening will be the reading of Washington's Farewell Address by Rev. Robert E. Keighton, address by Frank A. Schrepfer on "Washington the Soldier," address by Fletcher W. Stites on "Washington the Statesman," and an address on "Washington in Our Neighborhood," by a member of the Dr. Benjamin Rush Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, whose name will be announced in next week's "Our Town."

In addition there will be a one-act patriotic sketch by the Narberth Players and the school children will provide a series of minuetts. Chorus leaders will direct the singing of the national hymns by the audience.

Mrs. H. G. Martin and Mrs. C. Arley Farmer, representing the Daughters of the American Revolution, are members of the borough committee to which has been assigned the preparation of Narberth's part in the nationwide recognition of the important anniversary and all the facilities and prestige of this premier patriotic society, it is reported, will be lent to an instructive and impressive demonstration of the status of General Washington as first in war, first in peace and first in the hearts of his countrymen.

It is also stated that every household in the borough will be requested to make a display of flags and bunting during the entire week of February 22, 1932, and to display the Washington pictures which will be available at the local stores.

The other members of the committee are Mrs. John C. Nash, Mrs. Robert Fellows Wood, Arthur L. Cooke and W. J. Drennan, with J. J. Cabrey as chairman.

Benjamin Rush Chapter Discusses Bi-Centennial Plans

The Dr. Benjamin Rush Chapter, D. A. R., held its regular monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Frederick A. Egnore, 19 Elmwood Avenue, Narberth, on Monday afternoon. Mrs. Hugh Glenn Martin, the regent, presided.

Following the reports of the secretary and treasurer and the various chairmen of committees, plans were discussed for the participation of the chapter in the community celebration of the George Washington Bi-Centennial on February 22. Mrs. C. Arley Farmer was appointed as the representative of the chapter to make the arrangements for the part of the program in which the chapter will participate. There was no speaker as Mrs. J. G. Forney, State librarian, who was to give a talk on the D. A. R. Magazine and Library, was absent owing to illness.

Mrs. Walter O'Sullivan read a very interesting account of Washington's family relationship with his step-children and step-grandchildren, which depicted his great love for them and also his wise guidance in the important periods of their young lives.

The next meeting on February 15 will include a luncheon which is being given for the benefit of the chapter and will be held at the home of Mrs. E. B. Hoskins, 313 Woodside Avenue, at 1 o'clock. All members and their guests who wish to attend should notify Mrs. Hoskins or Mrs. John C. Nash, chairman of the ways and means committee, by Saturday, February 13.

Mulieres Plan Card Party

The Mulieres of the Narberth Fire Company are giving a card party on Friday evening, February 5, at 8 o'clock in Elm Hall. There will be bridge and pinoche and a number of attractive prizes. Reservations may be made with Mrs. William Sibley, Narberth 3821, or Mrs. J. J. Findeison, Narberth 2598-M.

Vestrymen Elected at All Saints Annual Meeting

At the annual parish meeting of All Saints Church, Wynnewood, on Tuesday evening the following vestrymen were elected: J. O. Hackenbush, Fred B. Dickson, B. S. Melor and Abram G. Tatnall.

Reports of organization heads for the past year were read at the meeting, including a review of the work being done at Gladwyne in conjunction with the Main Line Federation of Churches.

Approximately sixty people attended the supper served in the parish house by the Women's Auxiliary prior to the meeting.

Main Line Orchestra to Present Largest Group in Its History at Sunday's Concert

The largest playing group in its history will represent the Main Line Orchestra at its second concert of the season which will be given at the Ardmore Theatre this Sunday evening.

The organization will be under the baton of its conductor, Adolph Vogel, of Narberth.

The soloist at Sunday's concert will be Rosetta Samuel French, pianist, a former resident of the Main Line, who now lives in New Jersey. She will play, with orchestral accompaniment, two numbers by French composers. The first will be a novel, modern work, "Fantasie," by Aubert, while the other is "The Wedding Cake," by Saint-Saens.

The orchestra will be heard in compositions by Beethoven, Mozart and Bizet. The "Egmont Overture," by Beethoven, will open the program. This will be followed by Mozart's "Symphony in G Minor," one of his best known and most popular works for orchestra. Miss French will then be heard in the two numbers with the orchestra. The concluding number on

First Series Matured by Legion B. and L.

Payment of $55,400 Sent to 277 Stockholders This Week.

EARNED OVER 8 PCT. INT.

Its first single stock series was matured by the Narberth American Legion Building and Loan Association this week, and checks were sent holders of 277 shares for a value of $55,400.

Over 8 per cent. interest was earned by these shares, which matured in 11 years and five months. Stockholders paid $137 on each share and received $200, which included $63 profit.

Officers of the association, which meets the first Tuesday evening of each month for the payment of dues, in the Narberth Coal Company office, are Alexander C. Shand, Jr., president; Isadore A. Miller, vice president; Harry A. Simpson, secretary; Horace T. Smedley, treasurer, and Walter M. Burkhardt, solicitor.

Directors are Edward Davis, Maurice B. DuMarais, Ralph S. Dunne, James W. Follin, William H. Fowler, Harry A. Jacobs, J. L. McCrery, Carl B. Metzger, I. A. Miller, John A. Mowrer, Jr., Henry T. Nash, Jr., A. C. Shand, Jr., Harry A. Simpson, Horace T. Smedley, Fletcher W. Stites and William H. Durbin.

Next series of single and double shares will be opened April 5.

One Day Cooking School at Methodist Church

The Christian Herald will conduct a one-day cooking school under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Narberth M. E. Church on Wednesday, February 3, at 2 o'clock in the Parish Hall of the church.

A light buffet luncheon will be served and ten or fifteen worthwhile prizes will be awarded during the afternoon. Tickets may be obtained from Mrs. Howard White, Narberth 4036-W. A cordial invitation is extended to every woman of the community.

The regular meeting of the Epworth League will be held this Sunday evening at 6:45. The topic will be given by Edith Thomas. All are urged to attend.

Penn Professor to Speak at Men's Asso. Tuesday

The initial meeting of the James C. Simpson Men's Association will be held Tuesday evening at the Baptist Church of the Evangel, Narberth.

The speaker will be Roy Abrams, professor of sociology at the University of Pennsylvania. He will talk on "The Church in the World War." Professor Abrams is a frequent contributor to "The Nation," "World's Work" and other magazines.

The new men's group is named in honor of the late Mr. Simpson who, for many years, was secretary and president of the Men's Association at the Baptist Church.

Main Line Orchestra to Present Largest Group in Its History at Sunday's Concert

the program will be Bizet's suite, "L'Arlesienne."

"Many people think that the Main Line Orchestra is an exclusive affair since it is sponsored by prominent people," said J. R. Mickle, of Bala, business manager of the organization, in discussing the forthcoming concert. "That, however, is not the case. The idea back of it is to make it a truly representative community institution. In this, the orchestra's tenth year, we are continuing to work towards our ideal of presenting fine music with capable and talented players. Because of the interest manifested by musicians of ability it has been possible to raise the playing standards, making it more difficult to attain active membership in the organization. This raising of the standards in the players' ranks, has, of course, resulted in better music for the audiences."

An extra concert may be given this year for the benefit of unemployment relief on the Main Line. Mr. Mickle said. The plans for the Redwood String Quartet have not yet been definitely completed.

Narberth National Bank Holds Its Annual Meeting

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Narberth National Bank was held Tuesday of last week for the purpose of electing directors and informing the stockholders of the bank's condition.

The report of President Carl B. Metzger showed that the institution had maintained its community service unimpaired, had made a pleasing profit, and was in a strong position.

Directors re-elected were W. C. Alexander, Jr., F. von A. Cabeen, Jr., Edwin P. Dold, Howard Hager, Edward S. Haws, H. Boardman Hopper, Charles E. Kremer, J. L. McCrery, Carl B. Metzger, W. R. Parker, A. Perry Redifer, Jr., Alan J. Smith, Fletcher W. Stites and Leonard W. Williams.

The officers are: Mr. Metzger, president; Mr. Kremer, vice president; Mr. McCrery, cashier, and Carl B. Metzger, Jr., assistant cashier.

Penn Valley Garden Club Holds January Meeting

The Penn Valley Garden Club met on Monday at "Penn Valley Farms," the residence of Mrs. John A. LaFore, president of this active organization. About twenty-five members attended the affair.

This being the first meeting of the new year, a review of last year's activities was given and plans for the coming season were enthusiastically discussed. Upon the completion of usual routine business, reports from several committees, etc., Mr. Edward Kolb was introduced who entertained those present with a talk on the culture of delphiniums, as to their importance in the well-appointed garden.

The next meeting will be held early in February and as has been the custom in the past the members will again be addressed by a guest speaker on a topic sympathetic with the aims of this organization.

Named to Tennis Posts

W. D. R. Evans, of Narberth, was elected vice president of the Middle States Lawn Tennis Association last Saturday at its annual meeting. Frank Zook, of Cynwyd, was named a member of the Executive Committee.

Dr. Hart Discusses Religious Thought

HEAR GIRLS' GLEE CLUB

The Woman's Community Club of Narberth held its regular meeting in the Community Building on Tuesday, opened with the singing of a Bach chorus by the Girls' Glee Club of the Overbrook School for the Blind, under the direction of Miss Sarah Gertrude Reess. Following the regular business of the club and the reports of the various chairmen, the Girls' Glee Club gave four numbers which included "Dreaming Time," "Slumber Sea," "Gypsy" and as a finale, "They Met on the Twig of a Chestnut Tree."

One of the Overbrook students, Miss Anita Gaul, pianist, played a Gavotte in G Minor by one of the modern Russian composers and the "Submerged Cathedral," by Debussy. Miss Gaul gave a picturesque explanation of the mythological story on which Debussy founded his music. She is a pianist of remarkable ability and plays with a great deal of feeling and expression.

The speaker of the afternoon was the Rev. John M. Hart, Professor of the Psychology of Religion at the University of Pennsylvania. As the holder of this position, Dr. Hart finds himself in the midst of many religious controversies. His subject was "The Trends of Modern Religious Thought," in which he pointed out there was a tendency among all the religions of the world of coming together on the Divine Concept. According to Dr. Hart religion is not a mathematical problem, but a rich combination of the elements of life, and as everybody in the universe is becoming more and more interested in religion, they should be

Business Association Formed in Borough

Object to Safeguard Interests of Business Section, Improve Conditions.

DUNNE IS PRESIDENT

Over thirty of Narberth's leading business men formed an association this week to safeguard the interests of the borough's business section and improve conditions. At a meeting in the Arcadia Restaurant Wednesday noon, they decided on monthly dues, monthly meetings to discuss problems, and also elected officers and an executive committee to act in their interest.

President is Ralph S. Dunne, head of the Narberth Coal Company and president of the Bala-Cynwyd-Narberth Rotary Club. William H. Durbin, baseball star and member of the real estate and insurance firm of Durbin and Howard, was made vice president. Henry T. Nash, of Robert J. Nash's Narberth office, is secretary, and the treasurer is J. L. McCrery, cashier of the Narberth National Bank.

An executive committee of seven was elected, including the four officers and Fred Walzer, painter and recent

High Tribute to George Mahl, Jr., Narberth Youth Who Died Last Week

Funeral services were held last Saturday for George Arthur Mahl, Jr., fifteen-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. George Mahl, of 20 Narbrook Park, Narberth, who died last Thursday at University Hospital, Philadelphia.

Held at the Oliver H. Bair building, the services were conducted by the Rev. Gibson Bell, rector of All Saints Church, Wynnewood, and the Rev. Howard Burton Boyd, pastor of the Arch Street Presbyterian Church, Philadelphia. Burial was in Westminster Cemetery.

He is survived by his parents and a sister, Christine, a student at Oberlin College.

The plucky fight the youth had waged for four years against nephritis had won the admiration of all who knew him.

The following tribute to the boy was

Speaks Here Sunday

DR. A. R. WENTZ

professor of Church History at the Gettysburg Theological Seminary, who will be the speaker at the third community service of the season at the Narberth M. E. Church on Sunday night.

Parent-Teacher Group Hears Talk on Russia

Frank Conner, of U. of P., Tells of His Trip and Shows Soviet Slides.

LOU YOUNG CHAIRMAN

"Don't Sell America Short." This phrase, attributed to the comedian, Eddie Cantor, was used by Frank Conner in summing up his talk on "Conditions in Russia as They Are Today," made before the members and friends of the Narberth Parent-Teachers' Association on Monday evening in the school auditorium.

Mr. Conner, instructor of geography and industry at the University of Pennsylvania, gave a very interesting talk on a trip he made to Russia this past summer and illustrated his remarks with lantern slides given him by the Soviet authorities in exchange for pictures he had taken which the authorities confiscated. Mr. Hall, his traveling companion through Russia, operated the camera.

In describing his trip he spoke of the "Five-Year Plan" and the Russian efforts to carry it out, housing conditions, culture and recreation, religious propaganda and a number of other objects which makes the Russia of today so interesting an experiment to the rest of the world. In summing up his talk he expressed the opinion that even in the midst of economic upheaval, America today is infinitely better off than Russia of the Soviets.

Louis A. Young, chairman of the Fathers' Night Committee, introduced the speaker and gave a short talk on competitive athletics.

Kenneth L. M. Pray, president of

Sub-Juniors Hear Pearce

The Sub-Junior Department of the Women's Community Club of Narberth held a very successful meeting on Monday night in the Girl Scout wing of the Community Building. Vincent Pearce, instructor of public speaking at Lower Merion High School, was the speaker. Miss Marion Odiome and Miss Ethel Killian were the hostesses. There were twenty-five girls present.

Third Community Service Is Sunday

Dr. A. R. Wentz, of Lutheran Theological Seminary to Be Speaker.

TEACHES CH. HISTORY

The third Community Service of the season will be held this Sunday evening at the Narberth Methodist Episcopal Church at 7:45 o'clock.

The speaker will be Dr. Abdel Ross Wentz, professor of church history at the Lutheran Theological Seminary at Gettysburg. Dr. Wentz, who was ordained a Lutheran minister in 1907 and taught history at Gettysburg College for seven years, will speak on "Overflowing Abundance."

Born in York County, Pa., in 1883, Dr. Wentz received his A.B. degree from Gettysburg College in 1904 and his B.D. from the Lutheran Seminary in 1907. For the next three years he studied in German at the Universities of Leipzig, Berlin, and Tubingen. In 1914 he received his Ph.D. degree from George Washington University and his D.D. from Gettysburg in 1921.

A member of the executive board of the United Lutheran Church in America, Dr. Wentz is the author of several books dealing with the history of the Lutheran Church.

As in the past, this Sunday's service is sponsored by the following groups: Methodist, Baptist and Lutheran Churches of the Borough, Merion Friends' Meeting, American Legion and Woman's Community Club of Narberth.

All residents of Narberth and vicinity, whether connected with a local church or not, are cordially invited to attend the service.

Arabian Student Addresses Juniors

Wadi Taragi, of Haverford College, Describes Customs in Palestine.

FOOD SALE TOMORROW

The Junior Community Club held a supper meeting in the scout wing of the Community Building, attended by approximately thirty members and guests last Thursday evening. Mrs. Paul Shea, chairman of the hospitality committee, arranged for the supper, assisted by her committee, and a very good menu was enjoyed. At the meeting following the president, Mrs. Ellsworth B. Clark, held the chair during the business procedure. Mrs. Clark then welcomed the several guests of the club present, among them Miss Margaret Reid, chairman of the Juniors for the Southeastern District. Also present were Miss Margaretta Runyan, of the Senior Club; Mrs. W. J. Odiome, chairman of the sub-juniors; Miss Kitty Jane Miller and Miss Baker, sub-junior members, and Mrs. Anne Morgan Roberts, representing "Our Town." Mrs. Clark, at the termination of the business session, turned the meeting over to Miss Margaret Kent, chairman of the speaker's program who presented Wadi Taragi, of Palestine, an Arabian, who is studying Philosophy at Haverford College.

Educated in the Friends' School in the Holy Land connected with Haverford, Mr. Taragi gave an interesting account of the geographical situation of Palestine as well as the customs and manner of the people including the

20,000 Main Liners Must Act

The response to the editorial in these columns last week, urging the necessity for an open discussion of Merion Title and Trust Company matters, backed by real information, has resulted in widespread comment. That the public is vitally interested is an obvious fact. That depositors to the staggering number of 20,000 are involved, and must become active, is a necessity both for themselves and for the community as a whole.

With the consent of the directors of the closed bank and of the State Banking Department, a committee of depositors is now engaged in assembling a partial study of facts pertaining to the state of the bank as it now stands. On the basis of that report, which cannot in the nature of things be either exhaustive or final, community action must follow.

In the meantime, there is much to be thought over by the 20,000 or so people whose money is involved, for upon them will fall a part of the responsibility for the success of any plan for reconstruction that may be approved by the State. And, further, upon the success of such a plan will depend the amount these depositors may hope to recover from the wreck.

For it is common knowledge that a complete liquidation will wipe out millions in assets. A study of the appraisals of other closed banks will give a clue to that fact. It is also common knowledge that more can be salvaged if a new bank can be set up with aid in this liquidation as one of its functions. Such a bank, which is inevitable, will have to be a community enterprise.

The next few weeks will see the release of some pertinent facts on the Main Line's present hopes in the Merion Title matter. Complete information must follow, and the efforts of individuals and officials of local governments must keep at it until the screen is lifted. One cannot travel far in a fog.

Editorial writers new to the Main Line have been trying unsuccessfully to stir up a taxpayers' war against the civic and school authorities who had some $2,000,000 on deposit when the bank closed. It may be that stirring up useless trouble is one way of attracting notice, but it appears to the citizens of the Main Line that a more constructive attitude is in order. In brief, why does not a designated representative of each of these elected bodies take an active part in rehabilitation plans?

The past is gone, and we must save what we can. The problem now is to provide for the Main Line the banking facilities which it will need in the future.

Shoulder to Shoulder in Narberth

The fact that a group of Narberth business men have formed an organization is of more than passing interest to the residents of the Narberth trading section. Not that they will be called upon in any way, or that a local business group is a new thing. The new trade association is here to help the business section.

Many of us are apt to forget the value of a complete and well-managed shopping district. Such a section of a community like Narberth is a great asset to the entire town. People will trade where they have the advantages of convenience, value, courtesy and good stocks. Only by united effort on the part of the merchants can these advantages be attained.

The days when local shopping was urged because of community loyalty, because the merchant paid taxes, or because he needed help, have passed. Today the business man must prove his point, and in Narberth there seems to be a promise that this will be the case even more in the future than now.

The merchants have organized in the past, and each time some worthwhile thing has been accomplished. Parking has been greatly improved by concerted action. A new sewer was installed some years ago. This year Narberth's Christmas decorations were the most attractive on the Main Line. All these things have helped the business men, it is true, but they have also benefited the community.

We wish the new association the best of luck, and urge every resident to acquaint himself with what the Narberth merchant has to offer in convenience, products, and unfailing courtesy.

The Washington Bi-Centennial

The particularly effective committee which has been appointed assures Narberth of a celebration of the Washington Bi-Centennial which will be altogether worthy of the community.

The first announcement to come is of an impressive order and indicates that local plans are being formulated on the obvious desirability of drawing valuable instruction and information from the life and works of America's superb leader.

It is peculiarly fitting that a neighborhood of this kind, redolent of Revolutionary lore and marked well with the impress of the illustrious one, should afford a striking demonstration of what Americans of the present day owe to the Fathers of the Nation, among whom, of course, the immortal Washington was first and foremost.

There is no question that Narberth will conduct itself splendidly in the fine opportunity it now has to prove its patriotic mettle.

The B. and L.'s Are Doing Their Bit

This week more than $50,000 was mailed out to stockholders in the Narberth American Legion Building and Loan Association. Not only is the distribution of such a goodly sum a pleasant event, but it is worthy of especial mention because the shares maturing are of the first series issued by the local association.

Following closely upon the payment last fall of a large sum by its older brother, the Narberth Building and Loan, the action this week is a pleasant tribute both to the splendid condition of the local associations, and to the saving habits of Narberth folks. The maturity was accomplished in a little over eleven years, a fine showing under present conditions.

Shreds & Patches

The other day the Vagrant met a man who kindly said that he had been interested in reading last week the Vagrant's comments on the lack of a defined moral code in this generation. That man said: "I hoped when I read it that you would state such a code next week, even though it was tentative." That was just what the Vagrant should have foreseen, but did not. It is quite easy to write of moral codes in the negative and to state clearly those which have been discarded, but to compile a new one, that is beyond any ordinary man. It was not the Vagrant's intention last week to discuss a moral code, either past or present, as such. He endeavored to point out the helplessness of his own generation and cited the moral code merely as an example to prove his point. The only constructive reply which he can make to his friend's very reasonable request is to refer him and all others of the same mind to page 329 in "A Preface to Morals" by Walter Lippmann; to the paragraph which begins, "And so the mature man would take the world as it comes and within himself remain quite unperturbed."

Nearly everyone goes to the movies, of course. The movies are convenient, inexpensive and diverting. It seems to the Vagrant that the vast movie public can be roughly divided into three groups because of their somewhat different attitudes toward that form of entertainment. First, of course, is that horde who probably make up at least half of the movie patronage—those who take the movies with complete seriousness, who follow the careers of the movie actors and who never contemplate the screen offerings with detachment. The second group are those who attend the movies with quite definite regularity and personal enthusiasm, who really enjoy them most of the time, who are aware that there are people who inherently can not accept the movies as serious and worthwhile art. At the movies those of that second group enjoy them completely, but away they sometimes have vague misgivings. The third group, of course, are those who go to the movies occasionally and really enjoy them seldom. They are the people who can not take the movies seriously, but who at the same time regard Charlie Chaplin as a great artist.

If the critical judgment of that minority of movie patrons is correct why is it that so many persons of the second group are unable to share it after they become aware of it? The fault lies somewhat with the minority. If they are right and their viewpoint is intelligent, they should be able to convince other intelligent people. Why doesn't that happen? The reason is that it involves a discussion of abstract taste in terms of authoritative intelligence and therein lies a danger of being considered a "highbrow." It is better to retain pleasant personal contacts, which are on the whole enjoyable, than to expose one's self to the risk of being bracketed in that group which has been most despised ever since the country went "back to normalcy" under that exemplar of lowbrows, Warren G. Harding. Intelligent people could convince any other open mind wherein lies the inferiority of the movies, but what is the use since the personal hazards are great?

Yet while the highbrow and his opinions of the movies are apparently unnoted and unwanted, the verdict of the great mass of the population, unconsciously expressed, coincides with his own. The Vagrant has often noticed that whereas the opinions of individuals and of great masses of individuals are frequently misguided and misled, still under all of that mass opinion there is another, deeper, more unanimous and more authoritative. The American people have always refused to use a serious name for the motion pictures. The name "movies" sprang from the people. The motion picture industry has resisted its use, but to no avail. The struggle was renewed with the advent of the talking film. "Talkies" they were dubbed and "talkies" they will remain. Why haven't the people similarly nicknamed their other diversions, baseball, football, the radio, the theatre, automobilizing? Because they take them seriously. Public speech, expressing a deep instinct, has grouped the motion picture along with the other diversions which are nicknamed such as, for example, "kidding," "hoozing," "necking" and "petting," all of which are prevalent forms of amusement for which one feels really ashamed among his companions, but which actually are not seriously regarded.

It gave the Vagrant pleasure recently to learn that identifying occupational labels had been devised and placed on sale so that osteopaths, morticians, chiropractors and possibly the tonsorialists could affix them near the registration plates of their automobiles the same as physicians have been doing for some time. That is as it should be. The Vagrant hopes that all and sundry will join that movement until there shall be no one who can not, if he wishes, emblazon his car with the heraldic device of his trade or occupation. For thereby will be defeated the object in the minds of those who first designed and sold the green-cross doodads of the physicians. It was expected and implied that a car so adorned would and should be given special privileges in traffic and elsewhere, so that when Dr. Arrowsmith was slipping in town to his favorite speakeasy or furtively venturing to his love-nest, traffic cops should assume that a human life hung on the swift passage of that car to its destination. Proper methods of procedure are always available whenever traffic rules should be suspended for the medicine man, but otherwise he should go about his appointed ways like the ordinary citizen which he usually is.

THE VAGRANT.

One injustice of leap year is that every time an engagement is announced, someone will wonder who did the proposing.

LETTERS to the Editor

A New Resident Quotes the Encyclopedia

To the Editor of "Our Town":

In these parlous days—at least they would seem to be something like that, to one who is not any-too-hopefully nursing along a couple of erstwhile checking accounts in two of Dr. Gordon's well-known "branch offices"—I find it particularly comforting and illuminating to turn, from time to time, to the pages of a good encyclopedia, and there to read, willy-nilly, whatever may happen to catch my attention. For example, the other evening I happened to be looking over Volume 21 of the fourteenth (the latest) edition of the "Encyclopedia Britannica," and there on Page 94 I found a most interesting account of the famous—or perhaps I should say infamous—"South Sea Bubble."

I realize, of course, that a full 200 years have passed since this particular "bubble" burst, and in many respects, I suppose, times and conditions along the Main Line today are quite different from what they were in England in the early years of the Eighteenth century; at least, I would imagine so, although I am frank to admit that I am a comparatively newcomer into your community and am, therefore, not so well posted on such matters as, I judge, your older residents are. However, I found this article in the "Britannica" exceedingly interesting, and, I thought, well worth reading.

As some of your readers may remember, the "South Sea Bubble"—known officially as the "South Sea Company," was chartered to trade with the South Sea islands and parts of Central and South America, and originally it was a perfectly legitimate enterprise. But, as I learned from the encyclopedia, the greed of the directors of the company eventually got the better of their honesty and judgment, and by bribing public officials they obtained various special privileges and concessions. When stock in the company was selling at its highest point the directors "padded off" on the public 5,000,000 shares. Then—as stock seems to have a habit of doing just when most of the "outsiders" are on the verge of becoming millionaires!—the stock in the South Sea Company began to tumble, and in six months it had dropped from 1000 to 135; and, according to the "Britannica"—usually regarded, I believe, as a fairly reliable work—thousands of investors were ruined.

A committee of the House of Commons investigated the scandal and reported that the company's books contained "fictitious entries," and—continues the "Britannica" article—"it was shown that favors from the State had been purchased by gifts to ministers, some of whom had also made large sums of money by speculating in the stock." Criminal prosecutions followed. One high public official was imprisoned, two died before their trials were completed, and one was acquitted.

But by far the most interesting phase of the Government's action in the case is shown by the concluding paragraph in the article, which reads:

"By Act of Parliament the estates of the directors were confiscated; these were valued at 2,014,123 pounds (about $10,000,000), of which 354,600 pounds (about $1,700,000) was returned to them for their maintenance, the balance being devoted to the relief of the sufferers."

And as I finished reading that article in the "Britannica" I couldn't help thinking how much more sensible and practical it was to confiscate the estates of those directors rather than to put the directors themselves into jail. The latter course would only have created additional expense for the British Government and done nothing to relieve the depositors—pardon me, Mr. Editor, I meant to say "stockholders"; whereas, by confiscating the directors' estates and refunding the proceeds to the "sufferers" something approximating real justice was rendered to the community, and I have no doubt that those South Sea Company directors were punished quite as effectively by the confiscation of their estates as they would have been if they had been sent for a term of years to the Tower of London.

At all events, Mr. Editor, I offer free of any charge my plan of casual reading from any good encyclopedia as a pleasant and not altogether unprofitable way of filling in an odd half hour or so during these long winter evenings; and I am not entirely unhopful that some of your readers may find in it just the kind of recreation that they have long been seeking.

I am, sir,

One of Your Constant Readers.

Comments Editorial Stand

To the Editor of "Our Town":
You are absolutely right in asking the question—as you did in your last issue "... is it not about time the good folks on the Main Line were given some information concerning the state of some seven million dollars of their money, tied up in the Merion Title and Trust Company?" Indeed, it is high time that some such information was forthcoming, and I think you are to be commended for your patience in waiting all these weeks before pressing the inquiry. You have certainly given every one who is in any way connected with the affairs of the bank ample time and opportunity to make some kind of a statement that would at least throw a little light on the matter, but so far as I am aware the depositors know not one whit more about their money today than they did the day after the bank closed. And in this connection it is well to remember that, after all, it is the depositors, primarily, and not the directors, who make a bank. Directors may unmake a bank, but without depositors there wouldn't be any bank to begin with. And don't worry any about the possibility of someone calling you a "muck-raker." Just remember that it isn't the muckraker who makes the "muck" in the first place, and that if there is any "muck" it ought to be "raked" and cleaned up. That is just as necessary to a community's financial health as cleaning up ordinary filth is necessary to the community's physical health.

Main Liners Named to U. of P. Fund Posts

John B. Thayer, 3d, of Haverford, has been elected chairman of the Alumni Annual Giving Committee of the University of Pennsylvania. He has been vice chairman of the Alumni Committee since its organization in 1928 and a member of the Managing Committee since 1926. He is also a trustee of the University and a member of the Executive Board of the trustees. Benjamin H. Ludlow, of Ardmore, was elected to the vice chairmanship of the committee vacated by Mr. Thayer, which has been designated a senior vice chairmanship. Mr. Ludlow, a former State Senator and Lower Merion Township Commissioner, is a prominent Philadelphia attorney. He has served on the Alumni Annual Giving Committee since 1928 and has been chairman of the Law School Committee of the Alumni Giving Fund since 1929.

Launches Campaign Against 'Vicious' Magazines in City

Dr. E. A. E. Palmquist, of Narberth, secretary of the Philadelphia Federation of Churches, initiated a campaign for the suppression of "vicious" magazines last Friday. These are said to flood Philadelphia's 1500 newsstands as the result of a recent campaign against them in New York.

"There is no doubt that the city's newsstands are now being swamped by magazines of unprecedented viciousness," Mr. Palmquist declared. "Articles, jokes and pictures so obscene they should never be printed or sold openly to young boys and girls."

Jobs Have Their Drawbacks

"IT'S a wonderful opportunity—I suppose," Sue's voice faltered, "but Cleveland's so far away!"

Jim rubbed his ear ruefully. Sue was so attached to her home, her parents and her friends. But he couldn't refuse a job on that account.

Just then the telephone rang. Sue lifted the receiver. It was a call from Cleveland—from Jim's new general manager.

"My wife and I would like you to visit us," she heard him say. "We could help you find a house and get settled." The warmth of friendship Sue felt in his voice reassured her. She turned from the telephone smiling.

"I think the new job's going to be all right, Jim," she declared. "And that call gives me a thought. If I'm lonely I can always telephone home."

By ROBERT J. EDGAR

Only six more weeks of winter!

Don't throw away that poinsettia plant. Put it on the cellar floor until about June first. Drying out will not kill it.What of lawns for 1932? Not so promising. The excessive wetness of July and the extreme dryness of September, 1931, made a most favorable condition for crab grass. This pest is a hardy annual (very hardy) and it is more than likely that the seeds of 1931 will do well in 1932. Good soil and good grass seed sown thickly may crowd out the new crab grass, but our lawns will bear watching during the coming spring. Fall-sown grass is doing well during the mild winter and promises to do a good job in beating the crab grass.Fall is the time to do most of our gardening but somehow many gardeners believe that everything must be done in early spring. Spring should be the time to enjoy our gardens, not to start to make them. Spring work is mostly preparing for the fall garden of annuals and tender bulbs and this is a small part of the season's work.Dahlias from seed. Easy as can be.
Not the exhibition kinds for which we pay fancy prices but the single ones for cutting such as coltless hybrids.
Sown in frames, in pots or outdoors in early May they will give us plenty of flowers in early fall. If the colors are especially good the tubers may be saved over until the following year.This might be a good time to take a look at the stored dahlia tubers to make certain that they are not drying out.Speaking of single flowers reminds us of a visit with a lady gardener, president of a real garden club, who says she has little use for flowers that cannot be cut and used indoors.
Among her favorites are single dahlias, pyrethrum, single annual asters, doranicum, shasta daisies, belladonna delphinium, Iceland poppies and narcissus—the single and short cup varieties. Her arrangements of flowers in a bowl always look well—perhaps because we are partial to single flowers.While George Washington did not have the wide choice of trees and shrubs that is available to present-day gardeners he did plant white dogwood trees with the redbud or Judas tree (Cercis canadensis). Proving that George was an artist along with his other accomplishments. He also planted the white fringe tree (Chionanthus virginica) and the silver bell (Halesia). The record does not state, but he probably also planted the sorrel tree (Oxydendrum arboreum) for summer flowering and fall color. If George were living today he could not make a better choice than he did one hundred and fifty years ago. Our small native flowering trees and shrubs are beautiful by any standard and deserve to be more widely planted.Following the early bush honeysuckle we find the flowering quince (Cydonia japonica) in flower ahead of season. And in a warm exposure the very early little snowdrops were in flower.Wills $1000 to Bryn MawrBryn Mawr College is the recipient

Arabian Student Speaker at Junior Club Meeting

Christians, Moslems and Bedouins. He likened the Holy Land to a great bridge from the East to the West over which many races had passed and many of whom had contributed notably to the history of the world. Mr. Taragi also said that the atmosphere of the Old World was quite different from that of the Western World. Here, in America, every one seems full of life, pep and happiness, while in the Old World everything is dead and quiet but, nevertheless, he declared it was quite a factor in the peace of the world.

Most of the people of Palestine depend on the land for their livelihood and consequently when the Zionist swarmed down upon their peaceful valley they were resentful of the intrusion, which was bringing more people into a poor and overpopulated country.

According to Mr. Taragi, the women of Palestine are divided into several classes—the city women, who are more like the Western women in dress and customs; the Moslems, who still keep the veil and wear their native costume; the peasant women, who are still compelled to keep their nose and mouth covered, and the Bedouin women, who are clothed in black and wear a black face cloth. The Christian Arabs in Palestine are only allowed to marry one wife; the Moslems, according to their financial position, may have two three or more. The women of Palestine do not count for much, although quite an advance has been made in the last few years due to the missionary schools. The girls of tender age, who have become Christianized, do not marry as early as they did a number of years ago. A man's position in Palestine is rated upon the number of sons and their offspring and also the extent of his holdings. The various tribes seldom marry with each other but intermarry in their own tribe. Today many men are being educated to the fact that their daughters are as dear to them as their sons. Often the bridegroom never sees the face of his wife until after the ceremony on the evening of their wedding day. To do this he must press a gold coin on her forehead. As to entertainment, the young women and men each have their entertainments. Every prominent man of the country has a guest house on his estate where travelers are entertained and served with food and coffee, as it is the law of the desert to feed the traveler. In conclusion Mr. Taragi said that Palestine was essentially a religious country, consequently in the poetry and history of the land there was always a strain of religion. He spoke of the two classes of schools, the missionary schools, which teach a vocation to many of the inhabitants and which stress the teaching of English, and the public schools in which Arabic is stressed.

Miss Margaret Reid, better known as "Peggy," then addressed the girls, telling them of the many interesting and worthwhile activities which are being promoted among junior circles in the district. Miss Reid said that it was remarkable to her to note how extremely unselfish the activities of the juniors were, most of them planned in the interest of helping others. She stressed her pleasure at the report of the Christmas charities of the juniors which, under the chairmanship of Margaret Burrell, provided for aid to a distressed family in the community—food, clothing and toys helping to make their holiday cheerful.

Miss Reid told of plans for the district card party, an annual affair of the juniors to be held this year as usual at the Penn Athletic Club on February 13. Features of the party will include a contract bridge tournament, to be held on the balcony, and a fashion show, from one of the well-known Philadelphia shops.

The Narberth Juniors will hold a musicale and tea on Sunday, January 31, from 4 to 6 in the Community Building. The program, under the chairmanship of Miss Virginia Steinfeld, will be supplied entirely by members of the Junior Matinee Musical Club, and undoubtedly the affair will be a unique and delightful event in the junior's calendar and the men are to be invited upon this occasion!

This Saturday the finance committee of which Miss Alberta Davis is chairman, will hold a food sale in one of the stores on Haverford Avenue. Delicious home-made cakes, pies and candy to delight the palates of the most particular will be offered and a sharp lookout will have to be kept for the site of these delicacies in order to obtain a share of them.

The juniors have a busy two months ahead and seem to be thoroughly pleased with their activities past and to come.

Counties Title Elects

New directors of the Counties Title and Trust Company, elected at its recent annual meeting are George R. Sincickson, of Haverford, formerly with the Pennsylvania Railroad, and Carl F. Wehman, of Wynnewood, vice president of the City National Bank and Trust Company of Philadelphia. The Board re-elected Ledyard Heckscher as president, James K. Stone, vice president, and Henry C. Raynor, treasurer.

S. E. Federation Conference

at Phoenixville the 29th

The ninth annual conference of the Southeastern District of Federation of Women's Clubs will be held on Friday, January 29, at 10:30 A. M. at the Methodist Church, Phoenixville, Pa., corner of Gay and Church Streets.

Mrs. Mark C. Roberts is the hostess. In the morning session there will be the revision of the by-laws and the election of a second vice president of the district, a secretary and a treasurer.

Mrs. Richard J. Hamilton, president of the federation, the federation director, Mrs. John A. Frick, and Mrs. John M. Phillips, first vice president of the State, will be among the speakers.

Organized responsibility will be discussed by authorized speakers and will be treated from the various club angles. Mr. Frederick Libby, executive consul of the Disarmament Conference at Geneva, will be one of the speakers in the afternoon. He will talk on "International Relations." Mrs. Edgar Marburg will preside.

Mrs. Neal Anderson, of the press and publicity department, is in charge of the posters, press notices and scrap books which will be exhibited from the various clubs on that day. These should be sent to Mrs. Anderson, care of Mrs. R. S. Walker, Church Street, Phoenixville, or brought to the meeting that morning.

A mixed jury often turns out six of one and half a dozen of the other.

Many Magazines Are Available at the Library

All readers who for any reason whatever have curtailed the number of magazines to which they have subscribed this year will be glad to learn that the Library's list continues to include all that could be considered necessary to meet the ordinary demands of the public. In addition, through the long-continued interest and generosity of Mrs. John B. Brooks, of Narberth Avenue, several of the women's periodicals which the Library might otherwise have thought it wise to omit this year are still included.

Residents of the district are cordially welcome at all times to free use of all of these magazines. Current numbers are displayed on the reading tables and are kept there for use in the Library, but issues of the preceding month may be circulated in the same manner as are books. The list is here printed for reference.

American Magazine, Atlantic Monthly, Better Homes and Gardens, Bookman, Collier's Weekly, Current History, Harper's, Club Woman (gift of Mrs. E. C. Town), Forum, Good Housekeeping, House Beautiful, Ladies' Home Journal, Library Journal, McCall's, National Geographic, New Republic, Reader's Digest, Scientific American, Time, Woman's Home Companion, American Girl, Boy's Life, Child Life, St. Nicholas, John Martin's Book, Popular Science.

Villanova's basketball team lost to Catholic University of Washington, 31-25, last Friday night. A second-half rally by the Wildcats put them temporarily in the lead at 21-18 but the margin was soon wiped out by Catholic U.

Local Movies

Seth Parker, Barrymore, 5-Star Final at Narberth

For the whole family and the occasional moviegoer, Seth Parker and his Jonesport neighbors in "Way Back Home" is recommended as one of the most likable pictures of the year. Playing at Narberth this Friday and Saturday, the radio-famed sinners, saints, lovers and villains give a remarkable performance.

A memorable performance is given by Lionel Barrymore and Elissa Landi in "The Yellow Ticket," playing at Narberth next Monday and Tuesday. Best acting and most exciting drama you'll see in a while.

"Smart Woman," at Narberth next Wednesday and Thursday, is described as gay, hilarious and exciting as a party line. Its cast includes Mary Astor, Robert Ames and Edward Everett Horton.

"Five-Star Final" is another hard-boiled newspaper story. With the gangster star, Edward G. Robinson, in the leading role, this picture is a sure-fire thriller, rated four stars or something of the sort in critics' ratings.

At next Saturday's matinee "Peter Pan" will be presented as a special entertainment for children.

Excellent Shows for Adults Billed for the Egyptian Next Week

Screen and stage share honors at the Egyptian Theatre this Friday and Saturday, including matinee both days at 2:15 P. M. Laurel and Hardy appear at their funniest in their second feature picture, "Beau Hunks," and on the stage is "Frolics of 1932," a musical concoction sprinkled freely with comedy, singing and dancing of an international flavor. A short subject on the screen is Bing Crosby, radio crooner.

The romantic team of Joan Crawford and Clark Gable in a dramatic story of a factory girl who becomes the toast of Park Avenue makes an engrossing talkie of "Possessed," which will be Egyptian's feature next Monday and Tuesday. Adapted from the Edgar Selwyn stage hit, "The Mirage," and directed by Clarence Brown, who last filmed Norma Shearer and Clark Gable in "A Free Soul," the new Crawford picture is good entertainment. Gable is seen as a candidate for governor. Amusing support is given the stars by Skeets Gallagher.

Acclaimed as one of 1931's ten best pictures, "Street Scene" comes to Cynwyd next Wednesday and Thursday, with Sylvia Sidney and William Collier, Jr.

Helen Hayes' admirers will go to see her, Neil Hamilton and Lewis Stone in the superb "Sin of Madelon Claudet," another "best" for the year, at the Egyptian next Friday and Saturday. Will not be shown at Saturday's children's matinee.

Girl Scout News

The Girl Scout Troop, No. 8, of Narberth, had a guest at their regular meeting on Tuesday night in the Girl Scout wing of the Community Building. A dear little girl, one of our under-privileged neighbors, came to thank the troop for the generous basket given to her mother by them.

Mrs. B. H. Crowell is the Scout leader of this troop of twenty girls and not only this year did they respond so heartily to the need in our village, but last year as well they furnished a most splendid basket for another needy family.

FAITH FARMER.

Washington Film to Aid Local Relief Fund

A motion picture based on the life of George Washington will be shown in Masonic Hall, Ardmore Avenue, Ardmore, this Saturday morning at 10 o'clock, as part of an entertainment for the benefit of local unemployment relief.

The film will be presented through the courtesy of the Philadelphia Electric Company and is being shown in conjunction with the Washington Bicentennial celebration.

The affair is under the joint sponsorship of Mrs. Hoyt Sherman Griffith, of Wynnewood, and Mrs. Charles Graham Berwind, of Radnor.

In addition to the main picture two comedies will be shown and a special orchestra will furnish music. The admission charge is 20 cents.

The Robin Hood Nut Company is donating nuts to be sold, the proceeds to go to the unemployment fund. Three Main Line girls, Miss Mary Sue Westcott, Miss Elizabeth Ann Wood and Miss Dolly Diehl will have charge of the nut and candy booth.

History of Art Is Related at Rotary

Plea for Education of Children in Appreciation and Creation Made.

KORNHAUSER SPEAKER

A brief history of art throughout the ages, with special reference to modern opportunities, formed the subject of the talk Tuesday at the Bala-Cynwyd-Narberth Rotary Club. David Kornhauser, of the P. J. Reeves Leaded Glass Company, was the speaker.

Mr. Kornhauser traced the history of art from the pictures of animals on the walls of caves in Spain. The next phase was the Egyptian language, expressed in pictures. Ancient art, he said, reached its height in Greece, where an entire people, conscious of beauty, expressed that beauty in sculpture and other forms of art.

The early Christian era saw a let-down. The Jews and Mohammedans, forbidden by their commandments from reproducing any work of the Creator, concentrated on decorative art. The religious paintings of the early Italians began the era of modern art. Painting also showed the influence of Gothic and Byzantine architecture, which arose at that time. The highest craftsmanship in stained glass was attained in that period, despite the crude and difficult processes available. Modern craftsmen in this art endeavor to imitate the work of that period.

The renaissance of the fourteenth century began the modern era of art. In Italy a great period of painting, mosaic and sculpture arose, with men of the calibre of Michelangelo and Leonardo da Vinci setting a standard for art. The great masters of northern and southern Europe painted the scenes and people familiar to them, and established an appreciation of art which has never been excelled.

Mr. Kornhauser closed his talk with a plea for education of children in appreciation and creation of art. He told of the success of the Business Men's Art Club of Philadelphia, and of the excellent work done by men of no experience in painting.

Guy Croyle introduced the speaker.

Parent-Teacher Group Hears Talk on Russia

The Montgomery County Council of Parents and Teachers, extended a cordial invitation to members and friends of the local association to attend the sixth annual county convention to be held in the Hatboro High School, York Road, Hatboro, on Saturday, February 6, at 9.30 A. M. This promises to be an unusually interesting and profitable meeting. A hot lunch will be served in the cafeteria at 12.30 P. M. for 50 cents per plate. Reservations may be made with Mrs. R. Floyd Beggs, 134 Manor Road, Hatboro, Pa., not later than January 28.

The program for the meeting includes addresses by the State President, Mrs. Walter S. Greenwood, and by Dr. Eduard C. Lindemann, of New York, a noted speaker on parent education.

Mrs. W. J. Drennan requests the members of the Mothers' Chorus to meet at her residence, 417 Grove Place, Narberth, Monday afternoon, January 25, at 2.30 o'clock.

Mrs. Clarence Woolhington, vice president of the Montgomery County Federation of the P. T. A., was the main speaker at the Bridgeport P. T. A. on Monday. She talked on the P. T. work in general and what constituted a Parent-Teacher organization.

Dr. Hart Discusses Religious Thought

concerned with its meanings and applications. One of the trends of modern religion is to interpret the meanings of the writings of the Bible, many of which should not be taken literally. Dr. Hart explained that originally the Old Testament was written in the Aramic language, and when translated by the Greeks, lost many of the colloquisms and expressions, which may today have been interpreted wrongly.

Today modern Christian thought is meeting that of the Reform Jew in many of its phases. Dr. Hart stated that Orthodox Judaism and Orthodox Christianity could never get along together.

About a half a century ago the rationalist in the religious camps thought destruction was the prime necessity, or the false claims of authority and inspirationism had to be broken down before the free spirit of religion could emerge. But now, though much minor destruction, is still necessary, the prime need is construction. Construction, in deed, is busily at work, but much of it is ill-formed and misguided.

The religious emotions of mankind, these many centuries, have flowed into the channels of deity. The forms which they have taken have been in a large measure determined by this idea of God or Gods. To imagine, as many people do, that religion will cease to exist is to be lamentably illogical. The religious emotions are the natural product of man's nature. Robbed of the outlet of deity, they will find other outlets. There is no doubt about it that for the great majority of people some form of religious service, in the sense of some organized communal gathering, is the best way of ensuring that they shall periodically escape from the pressure of routine and worldly cares. Today people are becoming to want immortality in life and not life after death. Dr. Hart believes that the controlling factor of the world is evolution, that we go on and on, and that the fittest will survive, and that the same effort to find our place is required after death as in life.

Mr. W. J. Drennan, chairman of music, was in charge of the program. Mrs. Paul Morrow was the hostess.

The Fellowship Committee is giving a card party at the Philadelphia Electric Company at Wayne today. The proceeds will go to the unemployed of Narberth.

The next regular meeting of the club will be held in the Community House on February 2, at 2.30 P. M. The program will be in charge of the International Relations Committee. Miss Ellen Brinton will speak of her trip to Mexico which will be illustrated with colored slides and Mexican handicraft. Miss Pauline, pianist, will be the soloist. Mrs. Verna Woodcock will be the hostess. This will be an open meeting and all are cordially invited to attend.

Choral's Minstrel Show Is Next Week-End at B.-C. Woman's Club

Songs, dances and minstrel humor will feature a novelty minstrel show to be given by the Bala-Cynwyd Community Choral as its annual production at the Bala-Cynwyd Woman's Club, Levering Mill Road and Bala Avenue, 8.15 P. M., Friday and Saturday nights, January 29 and 30.

A chorus of 40 trained voices will sing popular song hits of today, and such other typically American songs as Victor Herbert's "American Serenade," Adam Geibel's "Little Cotton Dolly," Clokey's "Camp Meeting Song," Burleigh's "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot," Stephen Foster's "O Susanna," and G. L. Nevin's arrangement of J. L. Molloy's "Tambourine."

Soloists will be Marion Rockwell, Katharine Wigart Slingluff, Matilda A. Hapgood, Jack Stephenson, Robert A. Anderson, Thomas A. Elwood and William Tuttle.

Dancing and specialty numbers will be done by Gladys Bernstein, Ann Forsyth and Robert Baseler.

Camels and Pilots Tie at End of First Half

Pilots Won Three by Forfeit While Camels Take Lions Over.

BATTLERS DROP TWO

The Camels and Pilots tied at the end of the first-half season of the Narberth Inter-Church Bowling League. In the matches last Friday, which wound up the regular first-half schedule, the Pilots won three games by forfeit from the Boosters, while the Camels won all their games from the Lions and the Battlers lost two out of three to the Meteors.

The opening of the second-half will take place this evening at the Ardmore Alleys.

Sport Briefs

Bill Anderson never went up to the Haverford huddle and told the visitors before the game started that they were in for a licking. Anyone who knows Andy knows better.

"Papa" Albert Adam is always quiet during the basketball season. He is generating steam for the track season, where we expect him to repeat his championships of former years.

Coach Adam teaches German as a regular diet at Lower Merion High. The pupils think the world of him and as he was born in Germany, his German is correct and he can teach it with ease.

Lower Merion Junior High won from Pottstown Juniors Tuesday afternoon, 26 to 22. With a half-time lead of 21 to 7 the locals took things too easily and the visitors turned into a whirlwind that almost swept the home-lings off the floor. Captain Mike Zengel and his mates had the integrity at the finish and completed the final moments with a couple of field goals that kept the enemy at bay.

We present a petition that the cash customers leave the referees alone. If they make a mistake, feel sorry for them instead of presenting them with a royal razzberry. They don't want to make bones, and if the crowd would be patient with them they would make fewer, for they could concentrate on the game rather than feel that they are on the spot. Nine-tenths of the gallery do not know the correct ruling in half of the decisions anyway. If they would spend a little time reading up on the rules instead of jeering, they would do better, and the game would be improved.

Radnor has a good ball club this year. Conshohocken may take them over tonight, though. The boys over by the river have a fast club.

Chester should be fairly easy for Lower Merion tonight, but you never can tell.

The Junior High goes to Harrisburg today in cars to play Edison Junior High. The experience chart rates Edison to be better than the locals by ten points.

Haverford High continues to win. We are wondering what mid-year graduation will do for them. Here's wishing them good luck.

A team composed of the best in the Main Line League might get together to play the Sphinx or some other leading Philadelphia team. The local aggregation would give them a real run for their money.

GEORGE A. MAHL, JR.

rule and not be caught but, quite on the contrary, it was always a question of whether it was right or wrong.

"During the past five years those of us who knew George well learned of the depth and refinement of his very soul and spirit. His faith in God was his real source, or perhaps I had better say, the cause of all of his fine manly traits. That faith carried him on and bore him up over many trying and painful experiences. When he realized that those who loved him were worrying about his physical condition or about the pain with which he was suffering he was always ready with some story or joke by which he hoped to divert the thoughts of those who were with him. For any kind or generous act on the part of anyone else his heart was filled with most appreciative gratitude. His thoughtfulness and consideration for others was unbounded. He showed this particularly when another had done something at some expense of energy or endurance and what was done did not prove as effective as he had hoped or as the contributor had hoped, he never wanted the one who had done the deed to know that in any way it was not successful.

"At Montgomery School his thoughts were always directed toward the best interests of the school. The questions in his mind concerned how the school might be benefited by any act of his or by co-operation on his part. He loved the school as much as any boy could and it was always a cause of sorrow when he felt that he was not doing his part. With his physical handicap it was impossible for him to attain the grades which his natural ability would enable him to attain. That was a source of worry to him because he felt that it would be a reflection upon the school and his teachers.

"We know that God in His good providence will care for George and take him into His loving arms. We know that that faith which George has is leading him on into the newer and more glorious life. He has the prayers of all of us and we have the heritage of a beautiful example of industry, conscientiousness, righteousness and finally faith."
